

NEW HOLLAND

2014 present, St Petersburg, Russia

The island of New Holland is one of Saint Petersburg's most important historical monuments. Founded by Peter the Great in 1719 – the Island has been witness to every major milestone in the history of this Northern Capital.

The goal of the New Holland project is not only to restore this architectural landmark but to reinvent its role in the city. West 8's master plan and design guidelines for New Holland marry a new verdant landscape with the Island's unique architectural monuments. Creating an accessible open spaces that support new program, and showcase the island's architectural and historical complexes, in order to transform the site into a multi-functional public district that welcomes the citizens of Saint Petersburg, and acts as a public draw card for intellectual and creative forces from all over the world.

New Holland will become 'a city within a city'. The Island will encompass a number of new programs and functions, combining office spaces, culture areas, exhibition spaces, restaurants and retail zones and an 'apart-hotel'. The outdoor spaces will offer a series of public areas and green spaces necessary for creating an ambient public realm. The Island will also host a year round event calendar, which will include an open air program of events and a rich variety of temporary installations.
